Many schools in Buckinghamshire have begun to implement the new statutory Relationships/RSE and Health Education curriculum, reviewed their PSHE provision and have consulted on their Relationships/RSE policy. The updated guidance recognises that not all schools will have completed full preparations for implementing the required changes by September 2020. It is important to continue to implement the curriculum wherever possible and I am sure you will agree, PSHE including Relationships/RSE and Health Education provides a vital framework for teaching pupils about looking after their own wellbeing, adapting to change, building safe and positive relationships and managing the opportunities and challenges of daily life. With the transition back to school now taking place, high quality PSHE will be integral to supporting all pupils to process the impact Covid-19 has had on our lives and to enable schools to provide a planned and structured approach to teaching pupils the skills, attributes and strategies they need to manage all aspects of their emotional, physical, personal and social development.

The outcomes for Relationships/ RSE and Health Education and supporting DfE materials are all available to view on the links contained in the attached document below.
